

Three universal axioms of Natural Law

Unity of Creation: The nature and power of all creation is contained within every one of its elements. All elements take their substance from nature of the whole, and every element of that whole is equal to every other element. This unity is the basis for the harmony and commonality of Creation.

Commonality of Creation: As a consequence of this unity, every part of creation is connected to and mutually dependent on every other part. By nature, things that are equal to the same common source are equal to each other. Therefore, all things are by nature placed in common and every thing has an equal share in Creation.

Goodness of Creation: The Natural Law establish the wholeness and integrity of all parts of Creation. Energy and life is kept in a continual balance for the health and growth of Creation. Creation is natural balance and harmony.

There can be only one truth

*... and that is the truth,
the whole truth, nothing but the truth*
